

International Security Council Resolution 1888

Security Council Resolution 1888

Weapons of Mass Destruction

The Security Council, in its resolution 1888 (2009), reaffirms its commitment to the complete, verifiable and irreversible elimination of all weapons of mass destruction in accordance with the relevant resolutions of the Security Council, and in particular its resolutions 1540 (2004), 1873 (2009) and 1887 (2009), and stresses the need to strengthen the international non-proliferation regime, including the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW), the Biological and Toxin Weapons Convention (BTWC) and the Convention on the Prohibition of Biological Weapons (CDB), and to ensure that all States have the necessary capacity to detect, prevent and respond to any illicit activities related to weapons of mass destruction. The Security Council also stresses the need to strengthen the international non-proliferation regime, including the IAEA, the OPCW, the BTWC and the CDB, and to ensure that all States have the necessary capacity to detect, prevent and respond to any illicit activities related to weapons of mass destruction.
